

Comments from your Chief Investment Officer

Confidence began returning to the markets during October. On the macroeconomic front the two biggest trade conflicts appear to be edging toward a successful conclusion. British and EU negotiators agreed a new Brexit deal, which looks likely to be ratified following the forthcoming general election. More importantly, the US-China trade conflict also showed signs of thawing with China agreeing to buy more US agricultural goods and, in turn, the US delayed implementing additional tariffs on Chinese imports. In addition, we are also happy to report a healthy start to the Q3 earnings season; so far 24 of your 36 companies have reported, showing an average earnings growth of 9.70% year-on-year, with Edwards Lifesciences showing an outstanding 31% earnings growth rate.

During the month we have added two new investments to your portfolio, one from Taiwan and one from Japan. These new investments further increase your exposure to the semiconductor sector, which is currently enjoying a strong cyclical upswing.
